AKRON FEARS MAJOR RUBBER STRIKE

400 MEN HALTED BY PICKETS AT BIG OHIO PLANT

Goodyear Company Scene of Disturbance; Police Forced Back By Mob

SHERIFF REMAINS SILENT

Striker's Wife, Daughter Run Down By Automobile and Killed

Copyright 1936 By United Press
AKRON, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Near-ly 400 tire workers who tried to enter plant 2 of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. today were turned back at the main gate by pickets who threatened to bring a major strike to the nation's rubber capital.

After police had failed three times to get the morning shift into the plant, Chief Frank Boss announced withdrawal of his men "because I can't do a good job without trouble."

Operations at both plants of the company were paralyzed. There was no activity in plant 2 and in plant 1, the tire division, "bottle-neck" of all production lines, was down, with workers sitting idly by their machines.

Appeal to Sheriff

Goodyear officials appealed to Sheriff James Flower for immediate aid but the sheriff did not indicate whether he would respond. The only policemen on duty in the neighborhood of the plant were regular officers, numbering almost 20, but they were under order not to take a hand unless the pickets rioted.

A full shift of policemen who remained on duty all night left Akron with meagre police protection. During the night, the city had only one cruiser and three beat men on duty away from the plant.

The first attempt to get workers in the closed No. 2 plant came shortly before 6 o'clock. Men were unloaded from busses at the main gate and escorted by police to picket lines. The pickets surged forward, there were several minor clashes and then police and returning workers withdrew.

Always Turned Back

Police made two additional attempts to wedge workers through the "chainline" group of pickets, but each time they were turned back. Only six men got through the lines.

The clashes between police and workers continued on Page Eight

FARMERS GREET SEVEN VICTIMS T. V. A. DECISION OF HOUSE FIRE

Countians Act to Obtain Rural Electrification

A resolution, generally taken as a warning to power companies who are planning extensions on their lines in this county, was passed by the rural electrification committee Monday night at a special meeting in the Farm Bureau offices.

The meeting was called following the announcement of the Tennessee Valley Authority decision, pleasing news to county farmers who look toward the development as a possible source of power for this district.

The resolution passed follows: "Be it resolved that we, the Pick-away-co R. E. A. Co-Operative, go on record as favoring the active promotion of the present plan, with its enlargements and extensions, and further that we take the necessary steps to protect the present rights-of-ways and routes as outlined in the plan presented to the rural electrification administration."

Thirty farm leaders attended the meeting.

MARCH 22 WEEK IS CHOSEN FOR BRUNO'S DEATH

Attorney General Sends New Death Warrant to Judge Trenchard

SAVED BY REPRIEVES

Paper to Be Signed Wednesday; Date is Earliest Possible

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann will be rescheduled to die the week of March 22 if Justice Thomas W. Trenchard follows the recommendation of the attorney general's office.

Authorities drawing up the death warrant, which will be presented to Justice Trenchard tomorrow morning, said they intended to suggest that date as the earliest possible moment that the convicted Lindbergh baby killer can be executed under the New Jersey law.

Statute decrees that the death penalty must be executed not sooner than four weeks nor longer than eight weeks after sentence is passed.

Sentenced Third Time

When Judge Trenchard signs the warrant tomorrow it will be the third time he has sentenced Hauptmann.

Hauptmann's first scheduled execution was held up by appeal of the verdict of the trial court at Flemington. His second, planned for January 13, was averted by a 30-day reprieve granted by Governor Harold G. Hoffman.

Assistant Attorney General Joseph Lanigan completed the 12-page death warrant today. It lacked only the signature of Justice Trenchard who presided at the trial at which Hauptmann was convicted of kidnapping and murdering Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., and the filling in of the date by Justice Trenchard.

The warrant concludes: "Therefore, I, Thomas W. Trenchard, do hereby sentence the said Bruno Richard Hauptmann to be executed by electricity the week of _____."

Once the warrant is signed, Lanigan will take it to the sheriff at Flemington and the sheriff will return it to Col. Mark O. Kimbrell, chief keeper of the state prison.

Ashtabula veterans plan to follow the plans of the local corps and organize a relief organization in that village.

Tennessee Valley Celebrates Ruling Of High Court in Carnival Fashion

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Two million persons rolled in carnival over 40,000 square miles of the Tennessee valley today. They were celebrating the Supreme court's "go ahead" for the government power projects that mean jobs, cheap electricity and prosperity to scores of communities.

Cities and hamlets along all the Tennessee river from Paducah to Knoxville, 650 miles of mountain-rimmed valley, welcomed the Supreme court ruling for TVA yesterday with almost hysterical gratitude. Factory whistles blared, men and women cheered before newspaper offices, TVA workers in Norris, Tenn., held a Thanksgiving prayer service, then a community dance.

Tri-Cities Celebrate

Today the Albama "tri-cities," field, converted the unorganized celebration into a huge community feste. Their mayors proclaimed "open house" tonight for all the adjoining country side, wired state officials that special details of state patrolmen would be needed.

Mayors, bankers, merchants and common folk of Memphis, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Decatur and dozens of smaller towns back in the mountains joined in praise of the Supreme Court while crowds celebrated in the streets.

The court ruling was a go ahead signal for six cities holding tentative contracts for "yardstick" power from the monumental chain of dams built and buildings along the turbulent Tennessee. Officials of Memphis and Knoxville predicted that they would consummate negotiations for purchase of privately owned power distribution systems and soon tap the lines of TVA.

"This is the greatest break for Knoxville in history," City Manager George Dempster said.

To 12,500 TVA workers and their families the decision was vital. They, like a large share of the rest of the country, had thought it probable that the Supreme Court would send TVA after AAA and NRA. Work had slowed as a result.

Wild celebratory scenes occurred at Norris, the "model" TVA city, the $25,000,000 Pickwick landing dam below Muscle Shoals and at the $29,000,000 Wheeler dam, nearing completion 15 miles above the shoals. Workmen waited around the damsites in ecstasies of relief.

Villages in Prayer
Virtually the entire population of Norris, belabored as "god-less" because the town has no church, joined in the prayer service there.

Officials of the Alabama Power Co., losers in the Supreme Court ruling, refused to comment until they have studied it in details. A company stockholder said it would "hit some of the cities and rich people pretty hard" but would make north Alabama towns "rich overnight."

ALL DEVICES HIT AS ROSS COUNTY WARS ON SLOTS

Sheriff Vincent Follows Ford's Lead; Tuesday Deadline in Chillicothe

CHILLICOTHE, Feb. 18.—Orders for the immediate removal of all slot machines, pinball machines, penny cigaret machines and all other games of chance from the county have been issued by Sheriff Joe Vincent to his deputies.

The sheriff, still confined to his bed with a severe cold, followed the lead of Mayor James E. Ford, of Chillicothe in his order. The mayor has fixed Tuesday as the limit for removal of pinball machines from Chillicothe, but the sheriffs' order specified no time limit, immediate removal being mandated.

Asked by Prosecutor

The county-wide removal had been requested by Prosecuting Attorney Lester S. Reid in a recent letter to the sheriff in which he quoted the Ohio law prohibiting the exhibition of gambling devices. Deputies O. A. Maughmer and Don Lowery reported Monday that most of the machines had been removed from the county over the week-end after personal notification of operators by the deputies.

LANCASTER, Feb. 18.—Marble machines, confiscated from two Lancaster stores, are being held by police. The proprietors of the stores are alleged to have permitted minors to play the machines.

The store proprietors were not held, nor were the owners of the machines. No further action was taken.

COAL SHORTAGE ADDS TO PERILS OF FRIGID WAVE

No Dealer Has Enough Fuel on Hand to Supply Increased Demand

Highway Workers Report All Main Roads Clear, But Slippery, Dangerous

Norfolk residents were requested to report fires Tuesday afternoon or evening by telephone instead of using the alarm system. Severe cold weather and the high wind caused line trouble on the alarm system Tuesday morning and rang the bell a number of times. Linemen were working on the circuit, but were unable to say just when the trouble would be cleared.

Continued cold weather, with Tuesday's low mark reported at six below zero, is predicted for Circleville and community for at least two more days.

A dire threat of coal shortage was making the frigid weather much more tense. No local dealer today reported sufficient coal on hand to supply the great demand.

Dr. J. R. Clarke, who keeps Circleville residents informed of the rise and fall of the thermometer, and of the Scioto river, found his government thermometer far below the zero mark when he visited it Tuesday at 7 a. m. Monday, and caught many community residents unawares although they had been warned a skid was on the way.

Near Zero in Afternoon

Little relief is expected tonight with more sub-zero temperatures predicted. At 3 o'clock Tuesday the indicator was only slightly above the "nothing" mark. The new frigid wave eliminated any fears that might have existed that a flood was possible. Streams were all high but the cold weather has again reduced that danger.

Highway officials were busy all night Monday keeping roads clear. All main highways in the vicinity were open but reported slippery and dangerous. Despite this fact no local accidents of any consequence were reported. Three inches of snow fell Monday and Tuesday night.

Sub-zero temperatures put a halt on outdoor WPA projects Tuesday morning.

By UNITED PRESS

A new cold wave swept Ohio today and the state was back in the grip of the sub-zero temperatures that have been prevalent with but few breaks since early January. W. H. Alexander, state meteorologist, warned Ohioans the sub-zero temperature would prevail for at least another 24 hours and possibly longer.

PASTOR CLAIMS BRUNO REFUSES TO ALTER TALE

Efforts of Attorney to Entangle Hauptmann Fail, He Declares

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 18—(UP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann did not change his story "one single bit" in his dramatic death house interview with his new counsel, Samuel Leibowitz, nor is he likely to change it, the third party to the interview told the United Press today.

Minister in Denial
The Rev. John Matthiesen, Lutheran minister and Hauptmann's spiritual counselor for six months, was present at Leibowitz's three hour conference with his client Sunday and today cleared up mysterious circumstances which had inspired reports that Hauptmann changed his story, at least in some detail.

After Leibowitz left the death-house Sunday, he went to the home of Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, who gave Hauptmann the 30-day reprieve that expired Saturday, and conferred with him at length. "Mr. Leibowitz has not succeeded in changing Hauptmann's story one single bit," Matthiesen said. "And I don't think it will be changed."

"Then, despite the verdict of the Flemington jury, you are certain he has told the truth?" Matthiesen was asked.

"I am absolutely convinced of his innocence, and I am sure he told the truth."

Meanwhile Assistant Attorney General Joseph Lanigan indicated he would forward to Justice Thomas W. Trenchard today or tomorrow the new death warrant necessitated by the 30 days reprieve which expired Saturday. Justice Trenchard is expected to set a new date for the execution which under the law can take place any time between March 22 and April 26.

Should Women Die in Chair? Three Await Death

SHOULD women go to the electric chair? Considerable controversy has arisen over the question following death sentences recently meted out to three women. The case of Dorothy Sherwood, convicted of the "mercy drowning" of her baby son and sent to death row in Sing Sing has caused most of the reaction and public indignation. She said she did not desire him to suffer a life of poverty. Two others now awaiting execution are Mrs. Margaret Dolbow, of Salem, N. J., convicted together with her paramour, Norman Driscoll, of murdering her husband, and Mrs. Mary Creighton, who was sentenced to death along with Everett Applegate, both of Mineola, L. I., for poisoning Mrs. Applegate. Governor Lehman of New York, has refused commutation in two previous instances.

COAL SHORTAGE ADDS TO PERILS OF FRIGID WAVE

Wednesday is fair and continued cold.

Temperatures throughout the state dropped to points between seven and ten below zero and recordings of a similar type are expected tonight.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18—(UP)—Biting northwest winds today held back rescuers cutting through deep snowdrifts with food and medicine for shivering residents facing starvation in marooned Iowa and South Dakota towns.

Although skies were clear, the wind whipped up new blizzards from the loosely packed snow on the ground.

With six new deaths from escaping gas and six killed in a snowslide near Cortez, Colo., the death toll of the month-long cold wave mounted to more than 375.

Sickness and starvation threatened 200 residents of Athlestan, Ia., who have been cut off from all supplies since Feb. 7.

Store Shelves Empty
In a frantic appeal for aid, Mayor C. M. King reported there was no bread, sugar, flour, kerosene, lard nor feed for livestock in the isolated town on the Iowa-Missouri boundary line. Shelves in the two general stores were empty.

Mrs. Otis Cordell died of a ruptured appendix while snow crews fought for 48 hours to reach her home at Athlestan. Five other families reported serious illness. "There's only a half ton of coal in the town," Mayor King reported. "People have been chopping down trees and small shacks to get wood for their stoves. In most cases they've been heating only one room."

"If we don't get fuel today there will be more than a dangerous situation here."

Trucks loaded with food crawled slowly behind snowplows attempting to open roads to Twilight, Red Owl, and 10 other small settlements in southwestern South Dakota. Winds closed roads behind them and there was no turning back.

The food caravans were ordered out by Meade-co commissioners when they learned that several rescue parties had been trapped after reaching marooned towns.

Volunteers drove four horse drawn sleds and a tractor across snow ridges to Hatfield, Mo., where 200 residents had been snowbound for a month. They left left enough food and kerosene to last a week. Householders were burning fences and flooring for fuel, the rescuers reported.

The menace of death from gas escaping from frozen mains increased with four new deaths reported at Sycamore, Ill., and two at Omaha. Nineteen persons have been asphyxiated or killed in gas explosions during the past week.

Pilots Do Business

Fred and George Height, South Dakota pilots, flew a physician to an outlying ranch in the Black Hills in an effort to beat the storm. During the past two weeks the Height brothers in their ski-equipped plane have flown a physician to Newell twice, rescued a school teacher, rushed a sick girl to the Rapid City hospital, taken three marooned ranchers home and dropped mail to a half dozen towns.

The flying brothers today aided the search for Clyde Ice, Watertown pilot, missing since he took off from Pierre for Rapid City to make a survey for Gov. Tom Beery.

Weather observers said abnormally cold weather will continue Wednesday throughout the middle west. The 30 day period ending yesterday established a new all-time cold record in Chicago.

Gov. Paul V. McNutt asked Indiana school officials to close all schools immediately for spring vacation which normally comes in March or April. He said serious coal shortages and another cold wave prompted his request.

Shovelers attempted to reach the farm home of Raphael Raffé, 65, who lives alone near Wadsworth, Ill. He notified authorities he had kept alive for two days by drinking milk from his herd of cows. With his fuel gone, he has slept in the barn with the cows.

George Thielen, 51, died of pneumonia after a crew of 30 men plowed through drifts to his home near Wadsworth and brought him to the Waukegan, Ill., hospital. His 70-year-old mother was stricken with pneumonia last night. Another effort was to be made today to reach the Thielen home.

DAVEY ATTACKS XENIA EXPENSE

Governor Tells Listeners Home is Extravagant

COLUMBUS, Feb. 18—(UP)—Governor Davey, in his weekly radio talk last night, charged that the Ohio Soldiers & Sailors Orphans Home at Xenia is the "most extravagantly conducted institution of its kind in Ohio."

The governor's assertion was in reply to protests from the American Legion and other groups against his recent vetoes of items totaling $195,154 from the home's budget.

"Merely because the home at Xenia takes care of the orphans of Ohio soldiers and sailors, it is not a sacred cow, toward which we must take a worshipful attitude and never even raise a question about its cost or its business management," Gov. Davey said.

The governor said a comparison of the per capita operating costs of the Xenia home and the Junior O. U. A. M. home at Tiffin showed that the cost at Xenia was $680 and at Tiffin $256. The programs of the two institutions are similar, he said.

"Considering only the amounts available after all the vetoes, the Xenia orphans' home has over $21,000 more for the current two-year period than they had available in the previous biennium," Gov. Davey claimed.

He added that the Xenia home has almost $31,000 more for 1936 than was actually spent last year.

Now is the Time For This Help in Preventing Colds

Formula Especially Designed to Aid Nature's Defenses in Nose and Upper Throat, Where Most Colds Start.

PART OF COLDS-CONTROL PLAN

Don't wait for a cold to develop—or get you down. After any unusual exposure, head that first warning nasal irritation or sneeze—apply a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to avoid many colds.

Va-tro-nol is especially designed to aid and gently stimulate the functions provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Va-tro-nol spreads through the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

For Fewer and Shorter Colds

Note for your family: Vicks has developed, especially for home use, a practical Plan for Better Control of Colds. This commonsense guide to fewer and shorter colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians and further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full details of Vicks Plan come in each Va-tro-nol package.

Each puff less acid—Luckies are A LIGHT SMOKE OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

For twenty-five years the research staff of The American Tobacco Company has worked steadily to produce a measurably finer cigarette—namely, a cigarette having a minimum of volatile components, with an improved richness of taste—"A LIGHT SMOKE."

We believe that Lucky Strike Cigarettes embody a number of genuinely basic improvements, and that all these improvements combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

REVOLUTIONISTS TAKE PARAGUAY FROM FEDERALS

Peace Treaty Results in Drastic Action By Veter- ans of Chaco War

Copyright 1936 By United Press
ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Revolutionists led by veterans of the Chaco war claimed complete control of the country today after a swift, efficient uprising against the peace treaty negotiated by the government and approved by congress.

Rebel chieftains said that government forces surrendered unconditionally at 10 o'clock last night.

President Eusebio Ayala, it was announced, was a refugee aboard a gunboat in the Paraguay river off the capital, and Foreign Minister Luis Riart was a prisoner at the army aviation school.

Fighting broke out in the capital at 7 a. m. yesterday, with artillery and warships in the river taking part. Revolutionists soon appeared to dominate the situation.

Await Deported Hero

Revolutionists are led by Col. Federico Smith. They are awaiting the arrival from Buenos Aires of Col. Rafael Franco, outstanding hero of the Gran Chaco war, who was deported to Argentina by the government two weeks ago when it learned of plans for a revolt.

Franco, who was director of the military school when he was deported, was expected to assume the lead of rebel junta.

The revolt broke out after ratification by congress of the Paraguay-Bolivia peace treaty negotiated by delegates of American republics at Buenos Aires, and after authoritative information last Saturday that the government would accept the invitation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to a general South American peace conference at Buenos Aires.

Members of the rebel faction aimed their enmity against both President Ayala and Gen. Jose Felix Estigarribia, who led the Paraguayan armies to victory in the Gran Chaco war.

Estigarribia called Franco before him, told him of evidence that a revolt was planned and ordered Franco to apply for retirement and leave the country.

It was announced that the government sought Oscar Creydt and Obdulio Bartne, alleged communist leaders, as having conspired with officers to build up communist cells in the army.

THAT ONE WAS WORSE

FIVE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND YEARS AGO, roughly, in the earliest part of the Quaternary period, there began what, in the language of the New Standard Encyclopedia, was "a remarkable episode in the abnormal conditions of climate were involved."

It is safe to assume that the prehistoric equivalent of thermometers set new low records. Ice and snow crept out of the Arctic regions and came as far south—for a long, long winter—as Pennsylvania. It was in a layer 5,000 feet thick and undoubtedly very cold.

This was the pleistocene period, or glacial period, or ice age and a poor time to be on earth. It lasted half a million years which is longer, we think, than the present refrigeration will continue.

CARS TO BE JUNKED

A LARGE automobile company has decided to allow its dealers $20 on every used car accepted this month as a trade-in and junked. As the appropriation for this purpose is $1,000,000, it may mean that 50,000 unfit and unsafe cars will be taken off the highways. It also means an indirect price concession to buyers of new cars. And, if it works, the scheme will earn the company itself a profit.

This is "plowing under" of a character to win general approval. It will accomplish an object widely recognized as good, while the risk is taken by the party that stands to win, if it succeeds; to lose, if it proves a failure. This sort of thing could not, of course, be done if the automobile industry were governed and controlled by codes. It promotes the very sort of competition that the code system was designed to eliminate or discourage.

CHARLES CURTIS

THE CAREER of Charles Curtis was picturesque. A racial mixture of Yankee, French and Indian, he brought many distinctive personal attributes and characteristics to a life which started on a reservation and led finally to the vice presidency of the United States.

As a boy he rode horses on a Kaw reservation. Later he was a professional jockey and the remainder of his career from obscurity to eminence was in accordance with the best American tradition. He studied law, was admitted to the bar, became a prosecuting attorney, served fifteen years in the house and twenty in the senate, brought important elements of

INQUIRY FUNDS DOOMED WHEN NYE MADE ERROR OF ATTACKING WOODROW WILSON

WASHINGTON—History probably will record the munitions investigation, now nearing its last sessions, as one of the most useful in Senate annals. But its untimely termination is clouded in an atmosphere of backstage politics and petty personal bickering.

Two mistakes prevented the Committee from doing the kind of job it might have done, and from continuing unhampered until the job really was finished.

The first was the appointment of a Republican as chairman. Senator Gerald Nye—who introduced the munitions resolution—deserved to be chairman, but repeated experience has proved it inadvisable to place a minority member at the head of an important investigating body. There are invariably certain majority members who, secretly opposed to the probe, will make use of partisan prejudice to attack it.

This was the case with the munitions inquiry. From the very start, Democratic leaders balked at giving Nye the funds he asked for. A Democrat would have had little difficulty. But a Republican—well, that was different.

The other big mistake was Nye's failure to grasp what Jim Reed, acid-tongued one-time Senator from Missouri, once expressed to John T. Flynn.

Flynn had made Reed a lush offer to write memoirs of his various political battles with Woodrow Wilson. Reed refused.

"There is one thing I have learned about life," he said. "Never attack a saint. Woodrow Wilson is still canonized."

Nye made the mistake of attacking Woodrow Wilson. After that his committee appropriation was doomed.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The undercover lack of harmony between the Interstate Commerce Commission and Rail Coordinator Joe Eastman cropped out in a letter sent by the Commission to the House Appropriations Committee. The ICC briskly suggested that if Eastman's office is continued, his authority to use clerical employees of the commission should be rescinded. . . . Postal officials point out that the Pan-American's trans-Pacific plane is larger than any of the three ships used by Christopher Columbus when he discovered the American continent. political strength to the candidacy of Mr. Hoover in 1928 and made an eminently fair and capable presiding officer of the senate.

It has been said of Mr. Curtis that everybody in Washington liked him, his political opponents included. He was essentially human, loved a horse race or a game of poker, the companionship of congenial friends and life in general. He was courteous, kindly, loyal and honorable. Although dead, he will live long in the memory of many friends.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

Bolting Democrats and bolting yet unorganized—on both sides. Republicans will have to hustle to get independent tickets into the field after the respective conventions of the regular parties, if they decide to bolt.

In 1924 the La Follette folk waited until after the two major political groups had made their selections (Calvin Coolidge, Republican; John W. Davis, Democratic) before arriving at the conclusion that neither Coolidge nor Davis suited them. They then assembled in Cleveland to put their La Follette-Wheeler slate into the field.

But the La Follette-ites were fairly sure in advance that they would have to have a convention of their own. They did not believe, from the first, that either major candidate would satisfy them. Consequently they made all their plans for a progressive convention. They were ready to call it off if, by any chance, Republicans or Democrats named a standard bearer they could support. If not, however (and they thought not), they were ready to go ahead. They guessed accurately and did go ahead—though defeated.

BOLTERS UNORGANIZED

Today's would-be bolters are as

They are split, up and down the middle, too.

Two middles, in fact—a Republican middle and a Democratic middle.

In 1924 Republican progressives and Democratic progressives could combine, on the elder Senator La Follette, a Republican, and Senator Burton K. Wheeler, a Democrat, for president and vice president.

As of the present writing no such alliance seems possible.

WHERE TO GO?

It may be taken as a foregone conclusion that President Roosevelt will be renominated.

This would seem to imply a bolting Democratic ticket, headed by, say Al Smith. But a bolting Democratic ticket couldn't win. Suppose then, a Republican ticket, headed by such a nominee as Alf M. Landon of Kansas. Maybe that would give a chance to a conservative Democrat to vote for Landon rather than Roosevelt.

But what if the Republicans were to name Senator William E. Borah?

Then where would a conservative (Democratic or Republican) go?

As ex-Senator Simeon D. Fess aptly remarked: "If one's to vote for a New Dealer, why not vote for the original New Dealer?—President Roosevelt."

Senator Fess is an ancient reactionary, but he talks political sense.

AT LEAST FOUR GROUPS

There are then: Bolting Democrats and bolting Republicans.

The bolting Democrats and Republicans don't agree between themselves. Neither, of course, do the regulars.

They make four groups anyway, maybe more.

TOO LATE?

Republican convention, June 9. Democratic conventions, June 23, probably ending about June 28.

After that—so late—can a third or a fourth party get under way?

The necessity for a political realignment has been preached for years.

With every reason for it, it appears to be as impossible as ever it was.

With All My Heart

READ THIS FIRST:

Thora Dahl, who has left her home in Minnesota and journeyed east, obtains a position as housekeeper for an eccentric gentleman named Selwyn Marsh who lives in suburban New York. Thora meets Sherman Gordon, a friend of Marsh and his daughter, Wilma, who is away. Marsh is writing a historical book and Thora helps type his notes for him. While they are bending over the typewriter, a girl's voice greets Marsh.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 15

SELWYN MARSH straightened with a jerk when he heard his daughter's voice.

"What . . . ?" he began. His voice changed. "Oh . . . it's you!"

The slender dark-eyed girl, framed in the doorway, smiled slightly.

"The same," she smiled. Then added: "I hope I'm not disturbing you."

"Don't be silly," Marsh was striding across the floor as he spoke. The girl lifted a cheek for his welcoming kiss. "Why didn't you let me meet you?" he demanded.

"No need, Jim was at the station to get Aunt Dorothy. They brought me and my bags to the door."

"Didn't she come in?"

"No."

"I see . . ." Marsh seemed suddenly to recollect Thora who had risen from her chair. There was no way she could leave the room while the other two occupied the doorway.

"Oh, Wilma . . . I want you to meet Miss Dahl. She is looking after us in Mrs. Myron's place. My daughter, Miss Dahl."

"How do you do?" was Thora's quiet greeting.

Wilma Marsh nodded carelessly in return. She gave the new housekeeper a swift glance of appraisal. Then she walked to the table and tossed her gloves and bag down beside the typewriter.

"I suppose my room is ready?"

She was removing her hat as she spoke and the question seemed addressed to no one in particular.

"It is all ready, Miss Marsh. I will have your things taken up."

Thora's words were quiet, deliberate. But a strange rebellion seethed up in her. For the first time, she was trying conscientiously to assume the manner and tone of a well-trained servant.

For the first time, the barrier had been raised . . . and by a slip of a girl. A girl who had regarded her with an air of well-bred insolence. Thora tried to accept the situation philosophically, as she went to bed. It was all very well to remind herself that she was being silly, but . . . she couldn't quite help it. She would get used to it, no doubt. She would have to . . . that's why she was being paid.

Wilma's eyes followed Thora speculatively as she left the library. The returned traveler helped herself to a perch on the corner of the big table, took a cigaret from her bag, lighted it. Selwyn dropped into his chair, first moving it back where it belonged.

"Well, Selwyn Tuckett Marsh," his daughter observed, blowing a leisurely thread of smoke from her carmine lips. "It's apparently time I was getting home. Do you mind confiding in your child . . . how it happens that you have taken a beautiful blonde under your roof?"

"Selwyn," Marsh smiled with an impatient hand. Wilma knew he loathed the smell of her cigarettes. But this was scarcely the time to remind her of it.

"I told you," he said shortly. "I hired Miss Dahl to take Mrs. Myron's place."

"I thought you said something of the sort. But I don't remember Mrs. Myron struggling with a typewriter here . . . just curious, was all."

"Clever, you mean," her father growled. "Miss Dahl is acting as housekeeper. And she's a good one, incidentally."

"Then she isn't your secretary?"

"Not I got that typewriter the other day to use in getting my notes more readable form. Miss Dahl knows how to run a machine and I asked her to show me. She was doing a page for me . . . it's still there."

"Father, darling! I don't doubt your word. I'm only thinking how funny it is."

"Funny what is?"

"Why, Aunt Dorothy's been telling me that you had finally decided that Mom needed a vacation. She said you hadn't been able to find a woman that suited you . . . up to the time she came to meet me. So this morning . . . while we were in the city . . ."

Wilma smiled enigmatically and flicked her ashes to the rug.

"Well? Go on. What about Dorothy?"

"Nothing, only she went to an agency that supplies high-class help and looked over some prospects."

"What was the name of the agency?"

"Selwyn!"

DIET AND HEALTH

How Adults Also Suffer From Rickets

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

CHILDREN are not the only ones who suffer from lack of sunlight or lack of Vitamin D. It is true that all cases of rickets occur in children usually beginning before the age of 5. The softening of the bones which occurs does not show up until later, when activity begins and the soft bones of legs and arms will not stand the strain of muscular effort.

But there is a disease which possibly might be called the rickets of the adult. It has been known for a long time in medical literature under the name of "osteomalacia." In this, the bones become soft, and consequent deformities occur. Sometimes it is due to lack of materials which will build bone.

There was a so-called "cancer osteomalacia" in Austria and certain parts of Germany during and after the World war. In a remarkable article recently contributed by J. P. Maxwell to The Nutritional Abstract and Review, he reports on the wide spread of this disease among women in China and India, especially in devastated regions where the diet was at the lowest possible level for efficiency. The diet, however, was not the only factor; the seclusion of the women indoors is emphasized. This combination of lack of sunlight with a diet low in vitamins, calcium and phosphorus, resulted in the development of early symptoms of malnutrition of the bones. When the patients were allowed fresh air and sunshine, a fuller diet, and liver oil and calcium, a rapid cure was effected.

The effect of sunlight on the skin is not confined to the visible effects of tanning, etc. We have already spoken this week of the formation of Vitamin D in the skin by the action of sunlight on the vitamin, the presence of which prevents the development of rickets. An interesting contribution to the subject has recently been made by an anthropologist, F. G. Murray. He discusses the question of why the darker pigmented races are concentrated in the tropical regions and the white races in the temperate zones.

The idea that the sun has produced the darker pigment of the body is not in accordance with the modern theories of heredity. A more reasonable explanation is that if dark-skinned races were living in temperate or Arctic climates they would not get enough sunshine. The pigment in the skin would filter out the ultraviolet rays and cause and contribute to the development of rickets. This might be carried to such an extent that with the deformity which occurs in rickets in the female pelvis, the race would become extinct from lack of ability to reproduce. The only way to prevent extinction would be to re-emigrate back to a sunny, tropical land.

The somewhat pigmented Eskimo exists in the polar region because he has a fish blubber and fish liver oil and other substances which contain Vitamin D, and does not depend upon sunlight to form it in his body.

Even more striking than the struggle which a pigmented race has to exist in a northern climate, is the inability of the white race to inhabit successfully the equatorial zone. This is probably due to nutritional diseases caused by the excessive sunlight, or to toxic effects from sensitization to light. The pigment of the skin of the dark races forms a protective device which allows them to endure the excessive rays of the toxic symptoms.

—James Russell Lowell

THE WORLD

I saw Eternity the other night, Like a great ring of pure and endless light, All calm, as it was bright; And round beneath it Time in hours, days, years, Driven by the spheres Like a vast shadow moved; in which all her train were hurled.

—Henry Vaughan.

The apple probably was a native of Central Asia. It was introduced into America from England in 1629 by the governor of Massachusetts Bay Colony.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A HAND OF VARYING SCORES

DURING the second session of the team-of-fours contest for the Jacoby cup the following hand appeared, causing several up, its in scores for the evening. My partner and I sat North and South. I dealt as North, with only East and West vulnerable. We were fortunate enough to be the only pair defeating a small slam at no trumps, but our partners were one of three pairs to bid only 4-Spades on the hand, although they made 6. That gave us only second position for the evening, instead of first place, which bidding and making a small slam would have insured.

At three tables West bid only 4-Spades and made 6. At three other tables East bid 6-No Trumps, and made the contract at two of those tables. At two tables West bid and made 6-Spades.

At my table the opening lead against the 6-No Trumps was the 3 of diamonds. When dummy played low I refused to put up my K, thereby defeating the doubled contract. Declarer lost a club trick to my partner on a finesse of the 9. East tried to squeeze, but could not do so, finally having either to give us a spade or a diamond trick.

One East player made his 6-No Trumps by establishing spades, instead of bothering with clubs until later. He took four spade tricks, three heart tricks, the K of clubs and two diamond tricks first. By that time he had opponents down to an obvious holding of one diamond and one club each, so when he came through from dummy with his last club, up to his Ace and J, declarer expected clubs to drop when he played his top club, just giving him 12 tricks.

One East player for some unknown reason played off his Ace and K of clubs, when taking the finesse was the natural course. All he had to lose then was one spade trick, readily making his 6-No Trumps.

Of course the two West pairs bidding the small slam at spades had an easy time. They lost a single trump trick. Neither heart nor club trick had to be lost, and West discarded both his lower diamonds on dummy's established clubs.

In a rubber game East and West bidders never would think of playing their holdings for a small slam at no trumps. They would play the small slam at spades. But in duplicate bridge the added 10 points for 6-No Trumps meant top score, while making 6-Spades meant only second highest score.

Dinner Stories

CHILDREN—YOUR FATHER!

Mr. Welch, a man of affairs, had been dining out six nights in succession. On the seventh night he turned up at home for the evening meal. When he was seated, Mrs. Welch then rose and addressed the other occupants of the table:

"Children, we have with us tonight a guest of whom you have all heard, even if you do not know him personally. He is a man who has a reputation for good cheer in every club in the city, and this evening we are to have the honor and pleasure of being numbered among the admirers of his entertaining qualities. It is with the greatest pleasure that I present to you—your father."

SMALL WORRIES

A man on trial for his life was being examined by a group of aliens. Suddenly one doctor jumped up and shouted at him: "Quick, how many feet has a centipede?"

The man came back in a dry, dry voice:

"Gad, is that all you have to worry about?"

Becker's Group Gives Splendid Performance

Large Audience Sees Dancers Presented by Monday Club

Dancer is Star

MISS Marlene Wallace appeared in the Stella Becker dance group presented in the high school auditorium Monday evening under the auspices of the Monday club. Her performance was outstanding both in solo numbers and with the group. She will appear again in this city Thursday and Friday of this week between acts of "Minstrel Flashes" being presented by the C.A.C. in the Grand theatre.

Energetic by Harold Davidson, a Columbus composer. Caprice by L. Saar danced by Joan Eberle was followed by another number by the group. It was a beautiful one, Valse, by Friedman-Gartner.

In this troupe were Miss Becker's most advanced and older students as was evident in their interpretation of the number. They were Helen Alkire, Anne Burket, Virginia Brenner, Mary Ann Crawford, Edna Mengali, Clara Schneider, Marlene Wallace, and Jane Walsh.

Miss Viola Mae Alkire had two solo numbers in which she displayed remarkable technique, Air de Ballet, by C. Chaminade and an Interpretive dance, Etude, by B. Hecher.

Jean Canode and Janice Davis danced well together as they proved in their Pas de Deux by Ketselby.

The program concluded with one of Gershwin's dances, Prelude, by the older group.

Both solo and group numbers showed the capability of Miss Becker as a teacher of the dance. Mrs. K. K. Krummer of Columbus was the able piano accompanist.

Mrs. Adrian Yates, president of the Monday club, announced that the club would have its social session in St. Philip's Episcopal parish house at 6:45 o'clock Tuesday evening, March 3.

Miss Wallace's mother, Mrs. W. E. Wallace, entertained Miss Becker and members of the dance group at her home on N. Court-st. following the concert.

Joke Business Becomes Sadder, Sadder for Radio

Used Once They Are Then Forbidden Fruit; One Team Employs Three Humorists to Compose Shows

THE RADIO joke business is far from a joke to those whose business it is to originate or dig up and deliver gags to the millions of fun-seeking listeners.

In fact, it is getting sadder and sadder. Composers have long complained that the voracious microphone consumes their product so rapidly that the life of a smash hit tune may now be numbered in days instead of months. Writers of ether drama think they have it tough because their stories live for one night and, save for a possible revival or two due to public demand, are gone for ever.

But jokesmiths are in an even sadder plight. Once, and only once, can a gag be used, that is, in anything resembling its original form.

The situation is especially tough for stage comedians (and most of the top line air comics are ex-foot-light funnien). In the theater they could and did use the same gag night after night. Now, with wrenched heart and tearful eye, these comics utter into the maw of the mike their most priceless jokes, knowing that they will never see, or, rather, mouth, them again.

Of course, few radio comics attempt to write their own stuff. That would be courting a nervous breakdown. Nope. They employ expert gagmen, who dig up the laughs for them. It is the comic's job to make the gag sound as funny, if not funnier, than it is.

And that runs into money. One comic team, alone, hires three high-priced humorists to write its shows. So don't blink the next time you hear of large incomes for air comics. It isn't all clear profit. Not by a long shot.

TERHUNE SCORES 27 AS CLUB 'FIVE' WHIPS INVADERS

Score is 64-35; Marysville Without Services of Wagner, Hutchinson

Athletic Club cagers turned on the heat Monday evening to drub Marysville Tigers by a 64-35 score on the local court. Bob Terhune, Jackson-twp coach playing a forward for the Club, scored 12 buckets and three free throws to lead the scorers.

Marysville was without the services of Wagner and Hutchinson, who played in the Columbus league, but even against this pair the club will have a good chance in the return engagement.

Two other games were played with the C.A.C. Juniors winning, 23-17, from the Monarchs, and New Holland Grads defeating Pickaway Alumni, 21-12.

Johnny Heiskell refereed the big game.

CORNELL TO PAY $16,000 FOR NEW GRIDIRON COACH

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Cornell football, which plunged to its lowest depths in gridiron history, will be accorded every opportunity to stage a comeback under the new athletic regime at the Ithaca institution.

One of the first jobs facing the new athletic director, James Lynah, is the selection of a football coach to succeed "Gloomy Gil" Dobie.

Applicants for the job are divided into three classifications:

- 1—Those who are seeking the post.
- 2—Those Cornell is seeking.
- 3—Those being pushed by the alumni.

The qualifications of every man in each group will be studied carefully before the final choice is made about March 1.

Salary May Be $16,000

Athletic Director Lynah is personally inclined toward the selection of a young coach rather than an old established one. Cornell is sincere in its desire to turn out a winning team again, and will go as high as $16,000 for the man picked. In addition the school will furnish a home for him at Ithaca.

Among those who have been mentioned as Dobie's successor are Slim Madigan, St. Mary's coach; Harold (Red) Grange, assistant coach of the Chicago Bears professional team; Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern coach; Don Peden, Ohio University coach; Charles Caldwell, former Princeton star coaching at Williams; Dick Hanley, former Northwestern coach; Clark Shaughnessy, U. of Chicago coach; and Johnny Gorman, Princeton freshman coach.

STATE'S SCHOOLS MUST USE OKEHED SPORT OFFICIALS

COLUMBUS, Feb. 18.—(UP)—H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic association, announced today that member schools which use non-registered officials at athletic events after September 1, 1936, will be fined $2 for each game in which they work.

Townsend also announced changes to be observed in the district and state scholastic track meets this spring.

The distance for the low hurdle event has been reduced from 220 yards to 200 yards, with 18 yards from the start to the first hurdle;

About THIS and THAT In Many Sports

Big Fight Won't Be a Convention Benefit

Though Cleveland has bid for the Louis-Schmeling bout in June, it is not likely to go there . . . the big argument advanced by the Lake Erie metropolis is that delegates to the Republican convention will be in town . . . to which Promoter Mike Jacobs, an experienced ticket scalper, replies, "People who go to conventions, especially political conventions, want everything for nothing."

The same holds for Philadelphia, scene of the Democratic convention . . . with the added hazard, according to the promoter, that most of the Democrats would want paying jobs connected with the bout

Many Entries Reported For C.A.C. Boxing Meet

Athletic Club Enters Long List of Pugilists; Palace Restaurant Finds Foe for Big Doc Ferguson

Entries have been steadily pouring in for the Circleville Athletic club Pickaway-co amateur boxing tournament to be held March 2. Bailey's ringside grill has entered two fighters whose identities will not be disclosed until a few days before the fight. The Coca Cola bottling works has entered several youths, two of whom are Pug Fowler and Warren Lutz.

The management of the tournament announced today that a special prize will be given the organization sponsoring the greatest number of winners. Any organization or school in the county may enter boxers. There is no entry fee.

The C. A. C. is sponsoring a number of fighters with the following representing the Club; heavyweight, Doc Ferguson; midweight, Carl Purcell welterweight, John Kirkpatrick; light-weight, Al Van Fossen, and Paul Beck, and featherweight, Merle Davis.

Kenny Bell, 160-pound Given Oil entry, has entered. An opponent has been obtained for Doc Ferguson, heavyweight, with the Palace restaurant sponsoring Sherman Denny, 186-pounder.

There'll be a lot more entries. The blank at the bottom of The Herald sports page is all that is necessary. If an entry is under 18 yards between each two hurdles and 20 yards from the last hurdle to the finish line.

In the weight events and the broad jump, the final round of trials has been reduced from four to three.

A medley relay, to consist of 110, 220, 440 and 880 yard runs, has been added to the program.

Cross country teams will consist of seven men, although the teams score will be determined by the first five men to finish.

GYM NIGHT SET AT HIGH SCHOOL

Parents, Others Invited to Witness Exhibition

The public has been invited to attend the annual "Gymnasium" night at the high school Wednesday evening starting at 8 o'clock when physical education classes put together all they have learned this year.

It promises to be a red letter event in the high school's athletic year. Jack Landrum, director of physical education, will be in charge of the evening's festivities.

Some of the events of interest will be a volleyball game between the faculty and a team selected from the boys' gym classes. There will also be a girl's volleyball, human pyramids will be constructed and boxing and wrestling will be included. Tumbling on a competitive basis with dives for height and distance will have their share of the time.

Principal E. E. Reger especially urged parents to attend the "Gymnasium" night.

The Tiger cage team was scheduled to play in Grandview this evening in a regular Central Buckeye league game. Friday the Red and Black will go to Marysville.

Coach Landrum expected to use his full strength in an effort to turn back the Bobcats, defeated here 32-18. Styers and Andrews will be at forwards, Melson at center, and Henry and Jenkins at guards.

Delaware and Marysville play tonight for the undisputed league lead.

BRITISH CLOUTER DROPS OPPONENT TO NEW YORK MAT

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Jock McAvoy of England, who has stopped middleweight champion Babe Risko and fights John Henry Lewis of Phoenix next month for the world light-heavyweight championship, started his second American campaign last night by scoring a two-round knockout victory over Jimmy Smith of Philadelphia.

For a time it looked as though Smith was going to give McAvoy a tough time. In the first round, he drove the British middleweight and light-heavyweight titleholder to the ropes. In the second round McAvoy settled down and smashed Smith to the floor with three rights to the jaw.

When Smith regained his feet, McAvoy drove him to the ropes with a short left. Then he landed two more lefts and a hard right to the chin which put Smith down for the count.

Smith weighed 159½; McAvoy 171.

HUDLIN SIGNS CONTRACT TO PLAY WITH INDIANS

CLEVELAND, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Only three holdouts remained on the Cleveland roster today after Willis Hudlin, star pitcher, returned his signed contract to Cyril Slapnicka, assistant to President Alva Bradley.

Hudlin's salary was not announced, but it was believed he will receive $9,000. Hudlin won 15 games last season.

The only Indians unsigned are pitcher Johnny Allen, secured in a trade from the New York Yankees, infielder Roy Hughes, and Jimmy Gleason, rookie outfielder.

As Venzke Won

HOOSIERS STILL IN CONTEST FOR BIG TEN HONOR

Indiana Defeats Michigan; Purdue Has Tough Row to Hoe for Title

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Despite Purdue's unblemished record, Indiana remained a vital factor in the Big Ten basketball race today.

The Hoosiers, after losing their only conference contest of the season 48 hours previously, came back last night to whip Michigan, 40-23.

Purdue, with its eight straight victories, has four games left—against Northwestern at Evanston Saturday; Minnesota at Lafayette Feb. 24; Iowa at Lafayette Feb. 29 and Michigan at Ann Arbor March 7. Both Michigan and Northwestern, because of their home floor advantage, are possibilities to halt the Boilermaker winning streak.

Indiana, with eight wins and one loss, has three more conference teams to play—Wisconsin at Bloomington Saturday; Northwestern at Evanston Feb. 29 and Ohio State at Bloomington March 2.

The Hoosiers should be able to take Wisconsin but Ohio State and Northwestern present more difficult problems. It was Ohio which handed Indiana its only defeat, at Columbus last Saturday. The Hoosiers defeated Northwestern, 27 to 24, at Bloomington, Jan. 11.

COUNTY TO RECEIVE $25,837.42 FROM OHIO SALES TAX

STATE EXPERTS PREDICT TOTAL OF 55 MILLIONS

No Allocation of "Use" Tax Attempted Since Receipts Are Uncertain

Pickaway-co local government fund will be augmented in 1936 by $25,837.42 from distributions of sales tax revenue, the state tax department estimated today.

The estimate was based on an expected yield of $55,000,000. Although collections last year totalled only slightly above $43,000,000, officials in the tax department are confident that the changes in the new law and more efficient enforcement will produce at least $12,000,000 more.

Based on Population
After necessary discounts, a total of $16,499,000 has been allocated to local government funds to be distributed on the basis of population. Of the expected revenue, $24,748,500 has been allocated to the state's public schools. These estimates of course are subject to change depending on collections and improvement in business conditions.

No allocations of "use" tax revenue have been made by tax officials as yet, since the revenue from this levy is problematical. Although collections from this tax have amounted to about $250 per day thus far, considerable increase in this form of income are expected as soon as the machinery for enforcement of this tax has been fully geared.

Allocation Certain
Allocations made at the beginning of 1935 to local government funds were based on a $60,000,000 expected yield and as a result the anticipated $25,754.54 that was to be distributed to the Pickaway-co local government fund last year fell short of its mark. This year, however, the estimates are based on more conservative figures and officials assert that the allocations will be realized to the fullest extent.

Baked Bananas and Cherries—Cut four large bananas in halves, crosswise, or use eight small ones. Lay in a buttered shallow baking dish. Boil together for a few minutes one cup of the juice from canned cherries with two tablespoons sugar and one tablespoon flour or tapioca. Add the cherries and bring to a boil. Pour over the bananas, dot with butter and bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. The bananas must not be mushy.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Makes Sons Ties

"When my husband's ties are discarded I use them for boys' ties," writes a housewife. "First I cut them in two. If very soiled I wash them; if not, I clean them slightly. I then rip the under seam of the widest end, take out padding, press, shaping a little narrower, and sew it up again. The narrow end I leave as is. I tie these two pieces as for wearing and on each end that sticks out sew a piece of narrow elastic to fit two-thirds around the neck. On the other side I sew a piece of matching material and on the two ends I sew a snap. The elastic fits around the collar and snaps on the side, which is easy for a boy to do himself. In this way a man's expensive tie becomes two ties for a boy. My five-year-old son is proud of his ties made 'just like daddy's.'"

Neat Stuffing

What do you think of this idea? "We have little ones, and morning brings many necessary tasks. When guests are here we awaken them in the morning by knocking gently on their door. We take them warm wash cloths and towels. Next we supply extra pillows and shoulder shawls or robes. Our guests are then ready for their breakfast trays. They can eat, read the paper and dress leisurely before joining the family. It is surprising how much time this gives the hostess to plan lunch and set her house in order. Our guests find this procedure delightful." So writes one charming hostess.

GREEK STEAMER HUNTED IN SEA

No Trace Found By U. S. Ship; Others in Danger

By UNITED PRESS

Heavy seas and fogs endangered the lives of half a hundred seafarers along the Atlantic seaboard today.

Four hundred miles off the coast of Maryland rescue ships fought mountainous waves in an attempt to find the Greek steamer Stefanos Costomenis. It carried at least 30 men and last feeble reports from its radio said it was "leaking badly" and in need of "immediate assistance."

The S. S. City of Newport News arrived this morning in the vicinity of the last position given by Stefanos Costomenis but could not immediately locate the distressed craft.

Off Newburyport, Mass., coast guardsmen searched through a heavy fog for dories holding 19 of the 21-man crew of the auxiliary fishing schooner Ingomar, grounded on a sand bar a half-mile off Plum island.

Only two members of the crew were aboard when coast guard cutters arrived beside the Ingomar. The others had put off in dories. Because of the high surf it was felt the dories could not land safely.

Four other ships went aground in Massachusetts water and were refloated.

HORNER STUDIES LIQUOR CHARGES AGAINST WALISA

Federal Commission Joseph Horner, Monday, continued the hearing of Roy Walisa, this city, charged with a conspiracy to violate the internal revenue laws through liquor manufacture, until Feb. 20.

At that time he will determine whether Walisa should be held for federal grand jury action.

A preliminary hearing was conducted Monday in federal court with Walisa represented by Tom A. Renick and W. B. Bartels.

At least one state witness was discounted in the Monday hearing when Mrs. Ida Neff, 28, Ashville, mother of four children, was on the witness stand.

Through a ruse by Walisa's attorneys, the defendant was seated in the spectators' section and Forrest Moss, this city, was sitting between the two attorneys.

Mrs. Neff testified she saw Walisa take alleged liquor to the home of John Swank, her neighbor. She told the court she saw him make several trips every week. She testified she was certain she knew Mr. Walisa because she was in the children's home with him a number of years ago. The witness said she had seen him a number of other times and knew him. Asked to point him out in the courtroom, Mrs. Neff said: "There he is" and pointed to Moss.

The charge against Walisa for conspiracy has been pending since October.

JUST REVERSED!

A farmer who was a witness in a hog stealing case seemed to be stretching a point or two in favor of the accused.

"Do you know the nature of an oath?" the prosecuting attorney roared.

"Sure."

"Do you know you are not to bear false witness against your neighbor?"

"I'm not bearin' false witness again him. 'I bearin' false witness for him."

AKRON FEARS MAJOR RUBBER STRIKE

400 MEN HALTED BY PICKETS AT BIG OHIO PLANT

Goodyear Company Scene of Disturbance; Police Forced Back By Mob

SHERIFF REMAINS SILENT

Striker's Wife, Daughter Run Down By Automobile and Killed

Copyright 1936 By United Press
AKRON, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Near-ly 400 tire workers who tried to enter plant 2 of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. today were turned back at the main gate by pickets who threatened to bring a major strike to the nation's rubber capital.

After police had failed three times to get the morning shift into the plant, Chief Frank Boss announced withdrawal of his men "because I can't do a good job without trouble."

Operations at both plants of the company were paralyzed. There was no activity in plant 2 and in plant 1, the tire division, "bottle-neck" of all production lines, was down, with workers sitting idly by their machines.

Appeal to Sheriff
Goodyear officials appealed to Sheriff James Flower for immediate aid but the sheriff did not indicate whether he would respond. The only policemen on duty in the neighborhood of the plant, where regular officers, numbering almost 20, but they were under order not to take a hand unless the pickets rioted.

A full shift of policemen who remained on duty all night left Akron with meagre police protection. During the night, the city had only one cruiser and three beat men on duty away from the plant.

The first attempt to get workers in the closed No. 2 plant came shortly before 6 o'clock. Men were unloaded from busses at the main gate and escorted by police to picket lines. The pickets surged forward, there were several minor clashes and then police and returning workers withdrew.

Always Turned Back
Police made two additional attempts to wedge workers through the "chainline" group of pickets, but each time they were turned back. Only six men got through the lines.

The clashes between police and

Countians Act to Obtain Rural Electrification

A resolution, generally taken as a warning to power companies who are planning extensions on their lines in this county, was passed by the rural electrification committee Monday night at a special meeting in the Farm Bureau offices.

The meeting was called following the announcement of the Tennessee Valley Authority decision, pleasing news to county farmers who look toward the development as a possible source of power for this district.

The resolution passed follows: "Be it resolved that we, the Pick-away-co R. E. A. Co-Operative, go on record as favoring the active promotion of the present plan, with its enlargements and extensions, and further that we take the necessary steps to protect the present rights-of-ways and routes as outlined in the plan presented to the rural electrification administration."

Thirty farm leaders attended the meeting.

Man, Wife, Five Children Die; Hot Stove is Blamed

HUTCHINSON, Kans., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Frank O. Broyles, 36, his wife, Florence E. Broyles, 31, and their five children died today when fire destroyed their three-room frame house.

The children were: Michael, 9; Carl, 8; Helen, 7; Donald, 5, and Glenn, 4.

Firemen said the blaze was caused by an overheated stove. The Broyles home was in South Hutchinson where many needy families live. Broyles until recently was on the Reno-co relief rolls.

At the time of the fire he was employed by a salt company. Cecil Mesker, a neighbor, discovered the fire and ran a block to the home of William Henson who turned in the alarm. The house, Mesker said, was enveloped in flames.

Fire Chief Glenn West said that apparently Mrs. Broyles had been awakened by the smoke and tried to escape. Her body was found near the door, indicating she had been overcome by fumes before she could reach safety.

Two of the children's bodies were found near a window through which West said they apparently had attempted to escape.

In the smoldering ruins of the home firemen found the charred corpse of a dog which had been the children's pet.

MARCH 22 WEEK IS CHOSEN FOR BRUNO'S DEATH

Attorney General Sends New Death Warrant to Judge Trenchard

SAVED BY REPRIEVES

Paper to Be Signed Wednesday; Date is Earliest Possible

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann will be sentenced to die the week of March 22 if Justice Thomas W. Trenchard follows the recommendation of the attorney general's office.

Authorities drawing up the death warrant, which will be presented to Justice Trenchard tomorrow morning, said they intended to suggest that date as the earliest possible moment that the convicted Lindbergh baby killer can be executed under the New Jersey law.

Statute decrees that the death penalty must be executed not sooner than four weeks nor longer than eight weeks after sentence is passed.

Sentenced Three Times

When Judge Trenchard signs the warrant tomorrow it will be the third time he has sentenced Hauptmann.

Hauptmann's first scheduled execution was held up by appeal of the verdict of the trial court at Flemington. His second, planned for January 13, was averted by a 30-day reprieve granted by Governor Harold G. Hoffman.

Assistant Attorney General Joseph Lanigan completed the 12-page death warrant today. It lacked only the signature of Justice Trenchard who presided at the trial at which Hauptmann was convicted of kidnapping and murdering Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., and the filling in of the date by Justice Trenchard.

The warrant concludes: "Therefore, I, Thomas W. Trenchard, do hereby sentence the said Bruno Richard Hauptmann to be executed by electricity the week of—"

Once the warrant is signed, Lanigan will take it to the sheriff at Flemington and the sheriff will return it to Col. Mark O. Kimberling, chief keeper of the state prison.

Tennessee Valley Celebrates Ruling Of High Court in Carnival Fashion

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Two million persons rolled in carnival over 40,000 square miles of the Tennessee valley today. They were celebrating the Supreme court's "go ahead" for the government power projects that mean jobs, cheap electricity and prosperity to scores of communities.

Cities and hamlets along all the Tennessee river from Paducah to Knoxville, 650 miles of mountain-rimmed valley, welcomed the Supreme court ruling for TVA yesterday with almost hysterical gratitude. Factory whistles blared, men and women cheered before newspaper offices. TVA workers in Norris, Tenn., held a Thanksgiving prayer service, then a community dance.

Tri-Cities Celebrate
Today the Alabama "tri-cities," field, converted the unorganized celebration into a huge community fete. Their mayors proclaimed "open house" tonight for all the adjoining country side, wired state officials that special details of state patrolmen would be needed.

Mayors, bankers, merchants and common folk of Memphis, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Decatur and dozens of smaller towns back in the mountains joined in praise of the Supreme Court while crowds celebrated in the streets.

The court ruling was a go ahead signal for six cities holding tentative contracts for "yardstick" power from the monumental chain of dams built and buildings along the turbulent Tennessee. Officials of Memphis and Knoxville predicted that they would consummate negotiations for purchase of privately owned power distribution systems and soon tap the lines of TVA.

"This is the greatest break for Knoxville in history," City Manager George Dempster said.

To 12,500 TVA workers and their families the decision was vital. They, like a large share of the rest of the country, had thought it probable that the Supreme Court would send TVA after AAA and NRA. Work had slowed as a result.

Wild celebratory scenes occurred at Norris, the "model" TVA city, the $28,000,000 Pickwick landing dam below Muscle Shoals and at the $29,000,000 Wheeler

The land was offered first as two tracts and then sold as a whole. The insurance company was reported the only bidder.

Bryan Custer, deputy marshal, handled the sale.

A mass demonstration of Ohio State university students has been called for 11 a. m. Thursday to protest slashes on the university budget, according to an announcement from Columbus.

Pat J. Kirwin, Circleville, editor of the Lantern and chairman of the protest committee recently appointed by the student senate, said an intelligent, orderly approach to the problems of the governor's budget slashes will be maintained at the meeting.

The demonstration is without the sanction of administrative officials, it was reported, as officials have continuously discouraged any participation by students in the clash with the governor.

There will be no official dismissal of classes for the affair.

CHILLICOTHE, Feb. 18.—Orders for the immediate removal of all slot machines, pinball machines, penny cigaret machines and all other games of chance from the county have been issued by Sheriff Joe Vincent to his deputies.

The sheriff, still confined to his bed with a severe cold, followed the lead of Mayor James E. Ford, of Chillicothe in his order. The mayor has fixed Tuesday as the limit for removal of pinball machines from Chillicothe, but the sheriff's order specified no time limit, immediate removal being mandated.

Deputies O. A. Maughmer and Don Lowery reported Monday that most of the machines had been removed from the county over the week-end after personal notification of operators by the deputies.

Little relief is expected tonight with more sub-zero temperatures predicted. At 3 o'clock Tuesday the indicator was slightly above the "nothing" mark. The new frigid wave diminished any fears that might have clouded that a flood was passing. Streams were all high but the weather has again reduced the danger.

Highway officials were busy all night Monday keeping roads clear. All main highways in the vicinity were open but reported slippery and dangerous. Despite this fact no local accidents of any consequence were reported. Three inches of snow fell Monday and Tuesday night.

Sub-zero temperatures put a halt on outdoor WPA projects Tuesday morning.

FOR CLAIMS AND REFUSES TO ALTER TALE

Efforts of Attorney to Entangle Hauptmann Fail, He Declares

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 18.—(UP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann did not change his story "one single bit" in his dramatic death house interview with his new counsel, Samuel Leibowitz, nor is he likely to change it, the third party to the interview told the United Press today.

Minister in Denial
The Rev. John Matthiesen, Lutheran minister and Hauptmann's spiritual counselor for six months, was present at Leibowitz's three hour conference with his client Sunday and today cleared up mysterious circumstances which had inspired reports that Hauptmann changed his story, at least in some detail.

After Leibowitz left the death-house Sunday, he went to the home of Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, who gave Hauptmann the 30-day reprieve that expired Saturday, and conferred with him at length. "Mr. Leibowitz has not succeeded in changing Hauptmann's story one single bit," Matthiesen said. "And I don't think it will be changed."

"Then, despite the verdict of the Birmingham jury, you are certain he has told the truth?" Matthiesen was asked.

"I am absolutely convinced of his innocence, and I am sure he told the truth."

Meanwhile Assistant Attorney General Joseph Lanigan indicated he would forward to Justice Thomas W. Trenchard today or tomorrow the new death warrant necessitated by the 30 days reprieve which expired Saturday. Justice Trenchard is expected to set a new date for the execution which under the law can take place any time between March 22 and April 26.

Should Women Die in Chair? Three Await Death

SHOULD women go to the electric chair? Considerable controversy has arisen over the question following death sentences recently meted out to three women. The case of Dorothy Sherwood, convicted of the "mercy drowning" of her baby son and sent to death row in Sing Sing has caused most of the reaction and public indignation. She said she did not desire him to suffer a life of poverty. Two others now awaiting execution are Mrs. Margaret Dolbow, of Salem, N. J., convicted together with her paramour, Norman Driscoll, of murdering her husband, and Mrs. Mary Creighton, who was sentenced to death along with Everett Applegate, both of Mineola, L. I., for poisoning Mrs. Applegate. Governor Lehman of New York, has refused commutation in two previous instances.

Temperatures throughout the state dropped to points between seven and ten below zero and recordings of a similar type are expected tonight.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Biting northwest winds today held back rescuers cutting through deep snowdrifts with food and medicine for shivering residents facing starvation in marooned Iowa and South Dakota towns.

Although skies were clear, the wind whipped up new blizzards from the loosely packed snow on the ground.

With six new deaths from escaping gas and six killed in a snowslide near Cortez, Colo., the death toll of the month-long cold wave mounted to more than 375.

Sickness and starvation threatened 200 residents of Athlestan, Ia., who have been cut off from all supplies since Feb. 7.

Store Shelves Empty

In a frantic appeal for aid, Mayor C. M. King reported there was no bread, sugar, flour, kerosene, lard nor feed for livestock in the isolated town on the Iowa-Missouri boundary line. Shelves in the two general stores were empty.

Mrs. Otis Cordell died of a ruptured appendix while snow crews fought for 48 hours to reach her town.

home at Athlestan. Five other families reported serious illness. "There's only a half ton of coal in the town," Mayor King reported. "People have been chopping down trees and small shacks to get wood for their stoves. In most cases they've been heating only one room."

"If we don't get fuel today there will be more than a dangerous situation here."

Trucks loaded with food crawled slowly behind snowplows attempting to open roads to Twilight, Red Owl, and 10 other small settlements in southwestern South Dakota. Winds closed roads behind them and there was no turning back.

The food caravans were ordered out by Meade-co commissioners when they learned that several rescue parties had been trapped after reaching marooned towns.

Volunteers drove four horse drawn sleds and a tractor across snow ridges to Hatfield, Mo., where 200 residents had been snowbound for a month. They left left enough food and kerosene to last a week. Householders were burning fences and flooring for fuel, the rescuers reported.

The menace of death from gas escaping from frozen mains increased with four new deaths reported at Sycamore, Ill., and two at Omaha. Nineteen persons have been asphyxiated or killed in gas explosions during the past week.

Pilots Do Business

Fred and George Height, South Dakota pilots, flew a physician to an outlying ranch in the Black Hills in an effort to beat the stork. During the past two weeks the Height brothers in their ski-equipped plane have flown a physician to Newell twice, rescued a school teacher, rushed a sick girl to the Rapid City hospital, taken three marooned ranchers home and dropped mail to a half dozen towns.

The flying brothers today aided the search for Clyde Ice, Watertown pilot, missing since he took off from Pierre for Rapid City to make a survey for Gov. Tom Beery.

Weather observers said abnormally cold weather will continue Wednesday throughout the middle west. The 30 day period ending yesterday established a new all-time cold record in Chicago.

Gov. Paul V. McNutt asked Indiana school officials to close all schools immediately for spring vacation which normally comes in March or April. He said serious coal shortages and another cold wave prompted his request.

Shovelers attempted to reach the farm home of Raphael Raffe, 65, who lives alone near Wadsworth, Ill. He notified authorities he had kept alive for two days by drinking milk from his herd of cows. With his fuel gone, he has slept in the barn with the cows.

George Thielen, 51, died of pneumonia after a crew of 30 men plowed through drifts to his home near Wadsworth and brought him to the Waukegan, Ill., hospital. His 70-year-old mother was stricken with pneumonia last night. Another effort was to be made today to reach the Thielen home.

DAVEY ATTACKS XENIA EXPENSE

Governor Tells Listeners Home is Extravagant

COLUMBUS, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Governor Davey, in his weekly radio talk last night, charged that the Ohio Soldiers & Sailors Orphans Home at Xenia is the "most extravagantly conducted institution of its kind in Ohio."

The governor's assertion was in reply to protests from the American Legion and other groups against his recent vetoes of items totaling $195,154 from the home's budget.

"Merely because the home at Xenia takes care of the orphans of Ohio soldiers and sailors, it is not a sacred cow, toward which we must take a worshipful attitude and never even raise a question about its cost or its business management," Gov. Davey said.

The governor said a comparison of the per capita operating costs of the Xenia home and the Junior O. U. A. M. home at Tiffin showed that the cost at Xenia was $680 and at Tiffin $256. The programs of the two institutions are similar, he said.

"Considering only the amounts available after all the vetoes, the Xenia orphans' home has over $21,000 more for the current two-year period than they had available in the previous biennium," Gov. Davey claimed.

He added that the Xenia home has almost $31,000 more for 1936 than was actually spent last year.

Now is the Time For This Help in Preventing Colds

Formula Especially Designed to Aid Nature's Defenses in Nose and Upper Throat, Where Most Colds Start.

PART OF COLD-CONTROL PLAN

Don't wait for a cold to develop—or get you down. After any unusual exposure, heed that first warning nasal irritation or sneeze—apply a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to avoid many colds.

Va-tro-nol is especially designed to aid and gently stimulate the functions provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Va-tro-nol spreads through the nasal passages—reduces swollen membranes—clears clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

For Fever and Shorter Colds

Note for your family: Vicks has developed, especially for home use, a practical Plan for Better Control of Colds. This commonsense guide to fever and shorter colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians and further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full details of Vicks Plan come in each Va-tro-nol package.

A LIGHT SMOKE
OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

For twenty-five years the research staff of The American Tobacco Company has worked steadily to produce a measurably finer cigarette—namely, a cigarette having a minimum of volatile components, with an improved richness of taste—"A LIGHT SMOKE."

We believe that Lucky Strike Cigarettes embody a number of genuinely basic improvements, and that all these improvements combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

REVOLUTIONISTS TAKE PARAGUAY FROM FEDERALS

Peace Treaty Results in Drastic Action By Veter- ans of Chaco War

Copyright 1936 by United Press.
ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 18.—(UP)—Revolutionists led by veterans of the Chaco war claimed complete control of the country today after a swift, efficient uprising against the peace treaty negotiated by the government and approved by congress.

Rebel chieftains said that government forces surrendered unconditionally at 10 o'clock last night.

President Eusebio Ayala, it was announced, was a refugee aboard a gunboat in the Paraguay river off the capital, and Foreign Minister Luis Riar was a prisoner at the army aviation school.

Fighting broke out in the capital at 7 a. m. yesterday, with artillery and warships in the river taking part. Revolutionists soon appeared to dominate the situation.

Await Deported Hero
Revolutionists are led by Col. Federico Smith. They are awaiting the arrival from Buenos Aires of Col. Rafael Franco, outstanding hero of the Gran Chaco war, who was deported to Argentina by the government two weeks ago when it learned of plans for a revolt.

Franco, who was director of the military school when he was deported, was expected to assume the lead of rebel junta.

The revolt broke out after ratification by congress of the Paraguay-Bolivia peace treaty negotiated by delegates of American republics at Buenos Aires, and after authoritative information last Saturday that the government would accept the invitation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to a general South American peace conference at Buenos Aires.

Members of the rebel faction aimed their enmity against both President Ayala and Gen. Jose Felix Estigarribia, who led the Paraguayan armies to victory in the Gran Chaco war.

Estigarribia called Franco before him, told him of evidence that a revolt was planned and ordered Franco to apply for retirement and leave the country.

It was announced that the government sought Oscar Creydt and Ombulio Barine, alleged communist leaders, as having conspired with officers to build up communist cells in the army.

THAT ONE WAS WORSE

FIVE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND YEARS AGO, roughly, in the earliest part of the Quaternary period, there began what, in the language of the New Standard Encyclopedia, was "a remarkable episode in the obnoxious conditions of climate were involved."

It is safe to assume that the prehistoric equivalent of thermometers set new low records. Ice and snow crept out of the Arctic regions and came as far south—for a long, long winter—as Pennsylvania. It was in a layer 5,000 feet thick and undoubtedly very cold.

This was the pleistocene period, or glacial period, or ice age and a poor time to be on earth. It lasted half a million years which is longer, we think, than the present refrigeration will continue.

CARS TO BE JUNKED

A LARGE automobile company has decided to allow its dealers $20 on every used car accepted this month as a trade-in and junked. As the appropriation for this purpose is $1,000,000, it may mean that 50,000 unfit and unsafe cars will be taken off the highways. It also means an indirect price concession to buyers of new cars. And, if it works, the scheme will earn the company itself a profit.

This is "plowing under" of a character to win general approval. It will accomplish an object widely recognized as good, while the risk is taken by the party that stands to win, if it succeeds; to lose, if it proves a failure. This sort of thing could not, of course, be done if the automobile industry were governed and controlled by codes. It promotes the very sort of competition that the code system was designed to eliminate or discourage.

CHARLES CURTIS

THE CAREER of Charles Curtis was picturesque. A racial mixture of Yankee, French and Indian, he brought many distinctive personal attributes and characteristics to a life which started on a reservation and led finally to the vice presidency of the United States.

As a boy he rode horses on a Kaw reservation. Later he was a professional jockey and the remainder of his career from obscurity to eminence was in accordance with the best American tradition. He studied law, was admitted to the bar, became a prosecuting attorney, served fifteen years in the house and twenty in the senate, brought important elements of

Bolting Democrats and bolting yet unorganized—on both sides. Republicans will have to hustle to get independent tickets into the field after the respective conventions of the regular parties, if they decide to bolt.

In 1924 the La Follette folk waited until after the two major political groups had made their selections (Calvin Coolidge, Republican; John W. Davis, Democrat) before arriving at the conclusion that neither Coolidge nor Davis suited them. They then assembled in Cleveland to put their La Follette-Wheeler slate into the field.

But the La Follette-ites were fairly sure in advance that they would have to have a convention of their own. They did not believe, from the first, that either major candidate would satisfy them. Consequently they made all their plans for a progressive convention. They were ready to call it off if, by any chance, Republicans or Democrats named a standard bearer they could support. If not, however (and they thought not), they were ready to go ahead. They guessed accurately and did go ahead—though defeated.

BOLTERS UNORGANIZED
Today's would-be bolters are as yet unorganized—on both sides. They are split, up and down the middle, too.

Two middles, in fact—a Republican middle and a Democratic middle.

In 1924 Republican progressives and Democratic progressives could combine, on the elder Senator La Follette, a Republican, and Senator Burton K. Wheeler, a Democrat, for president and vice president.

As of the present writing no such alliance seems possible.

WHERE TO GO?
It may be taken as a foregone conclusion that President Roosevelt will be renominated. This would seem to imply a bolting Democratic ticket, headed by, say Al Smith. But a bolting Democratic ticket couldn't win. Suppose then, a Republican ticket, headed by such a nominee as Alf M. Landon of Kansas. Maybe that would give a chance to a conservative Democrat to vote for Landon rather than Roosevelt.

But what if the Republicans were to name Senator William E. Borah?

Then where would a conserva-

INQUIRY FUNDS DOOMED WHEN NYE MADE ERROR OF ATTACKING WOODROW WILSON

WASHINGTON—History probably will record the munitions investigation, now nearing its last sessions, as one of the most useful in Senate annals. But its untimely termination is clouded in an atmosphere of backstage politics and petty personal bickering.

Two mistakes prevented the Committee from doing the kind of job it might have done, and from continuing unhampered until the job really was finished.

The first was the appointment of a Republican as chairman. Senator Gerald Nye—who introduced the munitions resolution—deserved to be chairman, but repeated experience has proved it inadvisable to place a minority member at the head of an important investigating body. There are invariably certain majority members who, secretly opposed to the probe, will make use of partisan prejudice to attack it.

This was the case with the munitions inquiry. From the very start, Democratic leaders balked at giving Nye the funds he asked for. A Democrat would have had little difficulty. But a Republican—well, that was different.

The other big mistake was Nye's failure to grasp what Jim Reed, acid-tongued one-time Senator from Missouri, once expressed to John T. Flynn.

Flynn had made Reed a lush offer to write memoirs of his various political battles with Woodrow Wilson. Reed refused. "There is one thing I have learned about life," he said. "Never attack a saint. Woodrow Wilson is still canonized."

Nye made the mistake of attacking Woodrow Wilson. After that his committee appropriation was doomed.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The undercover lack of harmony between the Interstate Commerce Commission and Rail Coordinator Joe Eastman cropped out in a letter sent by the Commission to the House Appropriations Committee. The ICC briskly suggested that if Eastman's office is continued, his authority to use clerical employees of the commission should be rescinded. . . . Postal officials point out that the Pan-American's trans-Pacific plane is larger than any of the three ships used by Christopher Columbus when he discovered the American continent. The Pacific airship weighs over twenty-eight tons and carries forty-eight persons. . . . political strength to the candidacy of Mr. Hoover in 1928 and made an eminently fair and capable presiding officer of the senate.

It has been said of Mr. Curtis that everybody in Washington liked him, his political opponents included. He was essentially human, loved a horse race or a game of poker, the companionship of congenial friends and life in general. He was courteous, kindly, loyal and honorable. Although dead, he will live long in the memory of many friends.

With All My Heart

BY SARA CHRISTY

READ THIS FIRST:
Thora Dahl, who has left her home in Minnesota and journeyed east, obtains a position as housekeeper for an eccentric gentleman named Selwyn Marsh who lives in suburban New York. Thora meets Selwyn's daughter, Wilma, who is away. Marsh is writing a historical book and Thora helps type his notes for him. While they are bending over the typewriter, a girl's voice greets Marsh.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 15
SELWYN MARSH straightened with a jerk when he heard his daughter's voice.
"What . . . It's you!"
The slender dark-eyed girl, framed in the doorway, smiled slightly.
"The same," she confessed. Then added: "I hope I'm not disturbing you."

"Don't be silly," Marsh was striding across the floor as he spoke. The girl lifted a cheek for his welcoming kiss. "Why didn't you let me meet you?" he demanded.

"No need. Jim was at the station to get Aunt Dorothy. They brought me and my bags to the door."
"Didn't she come in?"
"No."

"I see . . ." Marsh seemed suddenly to recollect Thora who had risen from her chair. There was no way she could leave the room while the other two occupied the doorway.

"Oh, Wilma . . . I want you to meet Miss Dahl. She is looking after us in Mrs. Myron's place. My daughter, Miss Dahl."

"How do you do?" was Thora's quiet greeting.

Wilma Marsh nodded carelessly in return. She gave the new housekeeper a swift glance of appraisal. Then she walked to the table and tossed her gloves and bag down beside the typewriter.

"I suppose my room is ready?" She was removing her hat as she spoke and the question seemed addressed to no one in particular.

"It is all ready, Miss Marsh. I will have your things taken up."

Thora's words were quiet, deliberate. But a strange rebellion seethed up in her. For the first time, she was trying conscientiously to assume the manner and tone of a well-trained servant. For the first time, the barrier had been raised . . . and by a slip of a girl. A girl who had regarded her with an air of well-bred insolence. Thora tried to accept the situation philosophically, as she went to find Ted. It was all very well to remind herself that she was being silly, but . . . she couldn't quite help it. She was just used to it, no doubt. She would have to . . . that's why she was being paid.

Wilma's eyes followed Thora speculatively as she left the library. The returned traveler helped herself to a perch on the corner of the big table, took a cigarette from her bag, lighted it. Selwyn dropped into his chair, first moving it back where it belonged.

"Well, Selwyn Tuckett Marsh," his daughter observed, blowing a leisurely thread of smoke from her carmine lips. "It's apparently time I was getting home. Do you mind confiding in your child . . . how it happens that you have taken a beautiful blonde under your roof?"

Selwyn fanned the smoke with an impatient hand. Wilma knew he loathed the smell of her cigarettes. But this was scarcely the time to remind her of it.

"I told you," he said shortly. "I hired Miss Dahl to take Mrs. Myron's place."

"I thought you said something of the sort. But I don't remember Mama Myron struggling with a typewriter here . . . just curious, was father?"

"Clever, you mean," her father growled. "Miss Dahl is acting as housekeeper. And she's a good one, too."

"Then I isn't your secretary?"
"Not I got that typewriter the other day to use in getting my notes in more readable form. Miss Dahl knows how to run a machine and I asked her to show me. She was doing a page for me . . . it's still there."

"Father, darling, I don't doubt your word. I'm only thinking how funny it is."

"Funny what is?"
"Why, Aunt Dorothy's been telling me that you had finally decided that Mom needed a vacation. She said that neither of you was able to come to the city. So this morning . . . while we were in the city . . ."

Wilma smiled enigmatically and flicked her ashes to the rug.

"Well? Go on. What about Dorothy?"
"Nothing, only she went to an agency that supplies high-class help and looked over some prospects."

"What was the name of the agency?"

"I'm sure I don't know. She told me that she found a good woman and that she would be out here tomorrow to see you."

"Very kind of Dorothy," was Marsh's dry comment, as he reached for his pipe. "But Miss Dahl's services are satisfactory . . . so far. I'm not considering a change."

"Where did the efficient young person come from?"

"I got her through the same agency that sent me several others," Selwyn evaded.

"Good references and all that, I suppose."

"None whatever."

"What do you know about her?"
"Not a thing."

"Where does she come from?"
"I haven't the faintest notion."

"And you took her in, just like that?" Wilma stared unbelievably at her father. His face was an expressionless mask. "Oh, well," she observed lightly, getting off the table.

"I don't suppose it makes so much difference whom we have. I plan to be at home now and I'll look after things for you."

Selwyn sucked hard on his pipe. "Glad to hear it," he observed curtly. "Just the same, we'll let the house arrangements stand exactly as they are, for the time being. They suit me. You'd better go and clean up. I want to work."

Wilma looked at her father for a long moment, before she said:
"How's Sherman? I think I'll give him a buzz and tell him I'm back."

Her hand went out to the telephone. "You won't find him home," Marsh remarked. "He's having one of his rare fits of industry. I talked to him this morning a minute. He was headed for the office."

"Then I'll call his mother and leave word that he's come to dinner."

"All right. We're dining at the usual time. Let Miss Dahl know about your plans."

Marsh caught up some papers from the desk and paid no further heed to Wilma or her brightly colored conversation over the telephone. When she was finished, the girl picked up her hat, gloves and bag and left the room without another word.

Her father sat for a time, scowling at the papers in his hand, until he heard Thora's energetic steps in the outer hall. Then he called sharply:
"Miss Dahl!"

DIET AND HEALTH
How Adults Also Suffer From Rickets

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
CHILDREN are not the only ones who suffer from lack of sunlight or lack of Vitamin D. It is true that all cases of rickets occur in children usually beginning before the age of 3. The softening of the bones which occurs, does not show up until later, when the child begins to walk and the soft bones of legs and arms will not stand the strain of muscular effort.

But there is a disease which possibly might be called the rickets of the adult. It has been known for a long time in medical literature under the name of "osteomalacia." In this, the bones become soft, and consequent deformities occur. Sometimes it is due to lack of materials which will build bone.

There was a so-called "hunger osteomalacia" in Austria and certain parts of Germany during and after the World war. In a remarkable article recently contributed by J. C. Maxwell to the Nutritional Abstract and Review, he reports on the wide spread of this disease among women in China and India, especially in devastated regions where the diet was at the lowest possible level for efficiency.

The diet, however, was not the only factor; the seclusion of the women indoors was emphasized. This combination of lack of sunlight with a diet low in vitamins, calcium and phosphorus, resulted in the development of early symptoms of malnutrition of the bones. When the patients were allowed fresh air and sunshine, a fuller diet, and liver oil and calcium, a rapid cure was effected.

The effect of sunlight on the skin is not confined to the visible effects of tanning, etc. We have already spoken this week of the formation of Vitamin D in the skin by the action of sunlight—the vitamin, the presence of which prevents the development of rickets. An interesting contribution to the subject has recently been made by an anthropologist, E. C. Mearns. He discusses the question of why the darker pigmented races are concentrated in the tropical regions and the white races in the temperate zones.

The idea that the sun has produced the darker pigment of the body is not in accordance with the modern theories of heredity. A more reasonable explanation is that if dark-skinned races were living in temperate or Arctic climates they would not get enough sunshine. The pigment in the skin would filter out the ultraviolet rays and cause and contribute to the development of rickets. This might be carried to such an extent that with the deformity which occurs in rickets in the female pelvis, the race would become extinct from lack of ability to reproduce. The only way to prevent extinction would be to re-emigrate back to a sunny, tropical land.

The somewhat pigmented Eskimo exists in the polar region because he eats blubber and fish liver oil and other substances which contain Vitamin D, and does not depend upon sunlight to form it in his body.

Even more striking than the struggle which a pigmented race has to exist in a northern climate, is the inability of the white race to inhabit successfully the equatorial zone. This is probably due to nutritional diseases caused by the excessive sunlight, or to toxic effects from sensitization to light. The pigment of the skin of the dark races forms a protective device which allows them to endure the excessive rays of the sun.

They pass me by like shadows, crowds on crowds, Dim ghosts of men, that hover to and fro,

Hugging their bodies round them like thin shrouds
Wherein their souls were buried long ago:

They trampled on their youth, and faith, and love,
They cast their hope of human-kind away,

With Heaven's clear messages they madly strove,
And conquered—and their spirits turned to clay;

Lo! how they wander round the world, their grave,
Whose ever-gaping maw by such is fed.

Gibbering at living men, and idly rave,
"We, only, truly live, but ye are dead."

Alas! poor fools, the anointed eye may trace
A dead soul's epitaph in every face!

Becker's Group Gives Splendid Performance

Large Audience Sees Dancers Presented by Monday Club

Dancer is Star

MISS Marlene Wallace appeared in the Stella Becker dance group presented in the high school auditorium Monday evening under the auspices of the Monday club. Her performance was outstanding both in solo numbers and with the group. She will appear again in this city Thursday and Friday of this week between acts of "Minstrel Flashes" being presented by the C.A.C. in the Grand theatre.

Energie by Harold Davidson, a Columbus composer.

Caprice by L. Saar danced by Joan Eberle was followed by another number by the group. It was a beautiful one, Valse, by Friedman-Gartner.

In this troupe were Miss Becker's most advanced and older students as was evident in their interpretation of the number. They were Helen Alkire, Anne Burket, Virginia Brenner, Mary Ann Crawford, Edna Mengali, Clara Schneider, Marlene Wallace, and Jane Walsh.

Miss Viola Mae Alkire had two solo numbers in which she displayed remarkable technique. Air de Ballet, by C. Chaminade and an interpretive dance, Etude, by B. Hecher.

Jean Canode and Janice Davis danced well together as they proved in their Pas de Deux by Ketelbey.

The program concluded with one of Gershwin's dances, Prelude, by the older group.

Both solo and group numbers showed the capability of Miss Becker as a teacher of the dance. Mrs. K. K. Krummer of Columbus was the able piano accompanist.

Mrs. Adrian Yates, president of the Monday club, announced that the club would have its social session in St. Philip's Episcopal parish house at 6:45 o'clock Tuesday evening, March 3.

Business Becomes Sadder, Sadder for Radio

They Are Then Forbidden Fruit; One Team Employs Three Humorists to Compose Shows

THIS RADIO joke business is far from a joke to those whose business it is to originate or dig up and deliver gags to the millions of fan-seeking listeners.

In fact, it is getting sadder and sadder. Composers have long complained that the voracious microphone consumes their product so rapidly that the life of a smash hit may now be numbered in days instead of months.

Writers of other drama think they have it tough because their stories live for one night and, save for a possible revival or two due to public demand, are gone for good.

But jokesmiths are in an even sadder plight. Once, and only once, can a gag be used, that is, in anything resembling its original form. The situation is especially tough for stage comedians (and most of the top-line air comics are ex-foot-light funmen). In the theater they could and did use the same gag night after night. Now, with wrenched heart and tearful eye, these comics utter into the maw of the mike their most priceless jokes, knowing that they will never see, or, rather, mouth, them again.

Of course, few radio comics attempt to write their own stuff, that would be courting a nervous breakdown. Nope, they employ expert gagmen, who dig up the laughs for them. It is the comic's job to make the gag sound as funny, if not funnier, than it is.

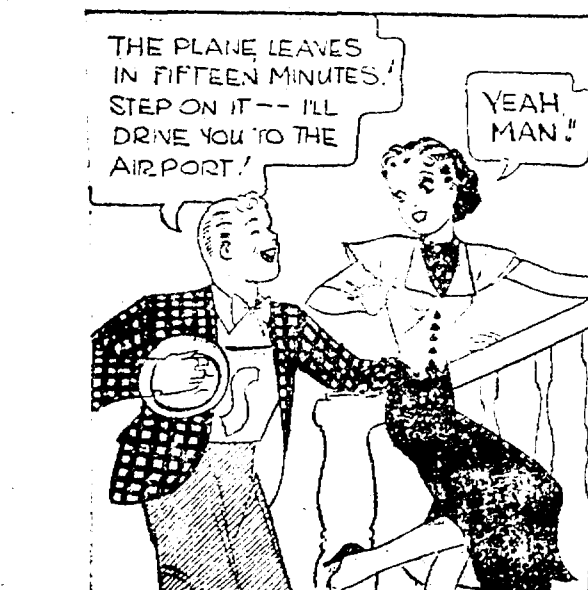

And that runs into money. One comic team, alone, hires three high-priced humorists to write its shows. So don't blink the next time you hear of large incomes for air comics. It isn't all clear profit. Not by a long shot.

Eddy Sings Sunday Nelson Eddy, baritone star of film, radio and opera fame, will be the guest soloist on the Concert over an NBC-WEAF network on Sunday, Feb. 23, at 10 p. m. EST. Erno Rapee will again be on the podium to conduct the 70-piece symphony orchestra.

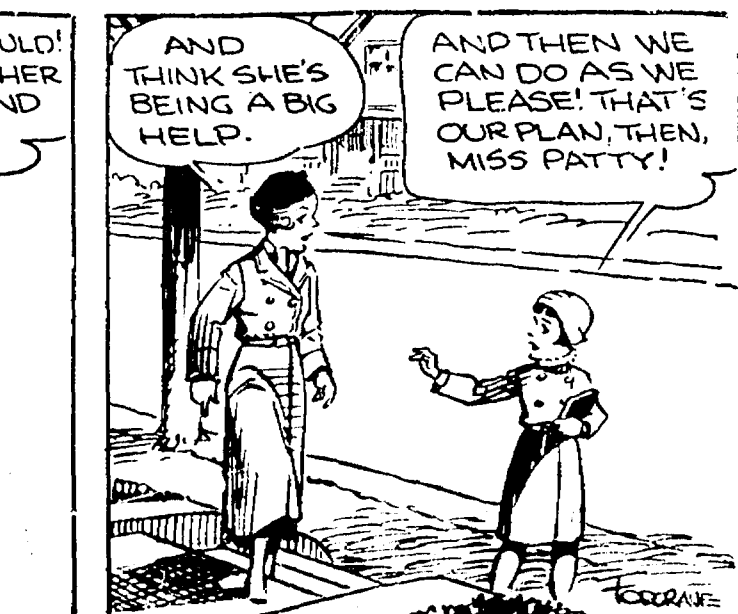

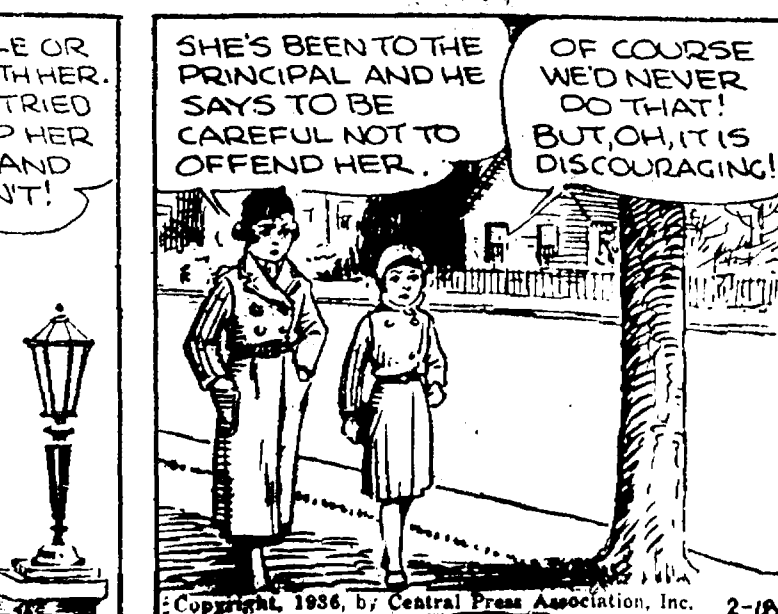

Eddy, whose latest screen opera, "Rose Marie," is the current box office hit on Broadway, has just returned from Hollywood and a concert tour that took him to more than 40 cities in the West. It was on such a concert tour three years ago that Eddy was "discovered" by the movies. Among the notables who came to hear him give a recital in Los Angeles' Philharmonic Auditorium in the Spring of 1933, was Louis B. Mayer, head of the M.G.M. studios. Mayer invited Eddy to the studio the following day and when the singer emerged from the executive's office, he had a seven year contract in his pocket.

TERHUNE SCORES 27 AS CLUB 'FIVE' WHIPS INVADERS

Score is 64-35; Marysville Without Services of Wagner, Hutchinson

Athletic Club cagers turned on the heat Monday evening to drub Marysville Tigers by a 64-35 score on the local court. Bob Terhune, Jackson-two coach playing a forward for the Club, scored 12 buckets and three free throws to lead the scorers.

Marysville was without the services of Wagner and Hutchinson, who played in the Columbus league, but even against this pair the club will have a good chance in the return engagement.

Two other games were played with the C.A.C. Juniors winning, 23-17, from the Monarchs, and new Holland Grads defeating Pickaway Alumni, 21-12.

Johnny Heiskell refereed the big game.

CORNELL TO PAY $16,000 FOR NEW GRIDIRON COACH

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(UP)—Cornell football, which plunged to its lowest depths in gridiron history, will be accorded every opportunity to stage a comeback under the new athletic regime at the Ithaca institution.

One of the first jobs facing the new athletic director, James Lynch, is the selection of a football coach to succeed "Gloomy Gil" Dobie.

Applicants for the job are divided into three classifications: 1—Those who are seeking the post. 2—Those Cornell is seeking. 3—Those being pushed by the alumni.

The qualifications of every man in each group will be studied carefully before the final choice is made about March 1.

Salary May Be $16,000

Athletic Director Lynch is personally inclined toward the selection of a young coach rather than an old established one. Cornell is sincere in its desire to turn out a winning team again, and will go as high as $16,000 for the man picked. In addition the school will furnish a home for him at Ithaca.

Among those who have been mentioned as Dobie's successor are Slim Madigan, St. Mary's coach; Harold (Red) Grange, assistant coach of the Chicago Bears professional team; Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern coach; Don Peden, Ohio University coach; Charles Caldwell, former Princeton star coaching at Williams; Dick Hanley, former Northwestern coach; Clark Shaughnessy, U. of Chicago coach; and Johnny Gorman, Princeton freshman coach.

STATE'S SCHOOLS MUST USE OKEHED SPORT OFFICIALS

COLUMBUS, Feb. 18—(UP)—H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic association, announced today that member schools which use non-registered officials at athletic events after September 1, 1936, will be fined $2 for each game in which they work.

Townsend also announced changes to be observed in the district and state scholastic track meets this spring.

The distance for the low hurdle event has been reduced from 220 yards to 200 yards, with 18 yards from the start to the first hurdle;

About THIS and THAT In Many Sports

Big Fight Won't Be a Convention Benefit

Though Cleveland has bid for the Louis-Schmeling bout in June, it is not likely to go there... the big argument advanced by the Lake Erie metropolis is that delegates to the Republican convention will be in town... to which Promoter Mike Jacobs, an experienced ticket scalper, replies, "People who go to conventions, especially political conventions, want everything for nothing."

The same holds for Philadelphia, scene of the Democratic convention... with the added hazard, according to the promoter, that most of the Democrats would want paying jobs connected with the bout.

A Cheer for the Champion

That isn't the old sausage about James J. Braddock going to work on the docks at Weehawken... James J. is just that kind of a boy... he's almost as proud of his ability to juggle railroad ties as he is of knowing his way around the ring... not every man can be a good dock wallop, y'know... And not every champion can keep the common touch as well as James J. does... as plain as a box car, James J. maintains the old friendships of his dock days... he must be given a salvo for one or two things, anyway... he hasn't gone a step upstage... he is still a New Jersey family man who knows Shakespeare only as a young feller from Staten Island who made a great football name at Notre Dame... all those beautiful gals?... swell... but how about a nice beef stew? *

He's Still Champion

James J. is not visibly affected by the nationwide search for a "white hope," an activity which is not very complimentary to the champion... he believes in his heart that he can lick Louis, just as he believed (though the world thought differently) that he could beat Max Baer... the world was wrong about James J. once, and can very well be wrong again.

Everybody will pick Louis to beat Braddock when they meet in September... Indeed, it is rather generally taken for granted that James J. cannot possibly win... but James J. will go in there sure that he's going to keep his title... he will not be beaten before the fight, as many of Louis' recent opponents have been.

Chance for Schmeling?

It is easier for the little crowd in this corner to imagine Braddock beating Louis than it is to see Schmeling doing it... The German hasn't shown enough left hand to make this department want to sing out in his behalf... to beat Louis it will take a whole lot of work with the fork hand... Braddock gave a very creditable exhibition with his left against Max Baer.

GYM NIGHT SET AT HIGH SCHOOL

Parents, Others Invited to Witness Exhibition

The public has been invited to attend the annual "Gymnasium" night at the high school Wednesday evening starting at 8 o'clock when physical education classes put together all they have learned this year.

It promises to be a red letter event in the high school's athletic year. Jack Landrum, director of physical education, will be in charge of the evening's festivities. Some of the events of interest will be a volleyball game between the faculty and a team selected from the boys' gym classes. There will also be a girl's volleyball, human pyramids will be constructed and boxing and wrestling will be included. Tumbling on a competitive basis with dives for height and distance will have their share of the time.

Principal E. E. Reger especially urged parents to attend the "Gymnasium" night.

The Tiger cage team was scheduled to play in Grandview this evening in a regular Central Buckeye league game. Friday the Red and Black will go to Marysville.

Coach Landrum expected to use his full strength in an effort to turn back the Bobcats, defeated here 32-18. Styers and Andrews will be at forwards, Melson at center, and Henry and Jenkins at guards.

Delaware and Marysville play tonight for the undisputed league lead.

BRITISH CLOUTER DROPS OPPONENT TO NEW YORK MAT

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(UP)—Jack McAvoy of England, who has stopped middleweight champion Babe Risko and fights John Henry Lewis of Phoenix next month for the world light-heavyweight championship, started his second American campaign last night by scoring a two-round knockout victory over Jimmy Smith of Philadelphia.

For a time it looked as though Smith was going to give McAvoy a tough time. In the first round, he drove the British middleweight and light-heavyweight titleholder

SCORING a smashing victory over his arch-rival, Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania's star miler, is pictured rounding the final turn during the running of the Baxter mile in New York's Madison Square Garden, holding a comfortable lead over the Kansan, Glenn Cunningham. to the ropes. In the second round McAvoy settled down and smashed Smith to the floor with three rights to the jaw.

When Smith regained his feet, McAvoy drove him to the ropes with a short left. Then he landed two more lefts and a hard right to the chin which put Smith down for the count.

Smith weighed 159½; McAvoy 171.

HUDLIN SIGNS CONTRACT TO PLAY WITH INDIANS

CLEVELAND, Feb. 18—(UP)—Only three holdouts remained on the Cleveland roster today after Willis Hudlin, star pitcher, returned his signed contract to Cyril Slapnicka, assistant to President Alva Bradley.

Hudlin's salary was not announced, but it was believed he

HOOSIERS STILL IN CONTEST FOR BIG TEN HONOR

Indiana Defeats Michigan; Purdue Has Tough Row to Hoe for Title

CHICAGO, Feb. 18—(UP)—Despite Purdue's unblemished record, Indiana remained a vital factor in the Big Ten basketball race today.

The Hoosiers, after losing their only conference contest of the season 48 hours previously, came back last night to whip Michigan.

Purdue, with its eight straight victories, has four games left—against Northwestern at Evanston Saturday; Minnesota at Lafayette Feb. 24; Iowa at Lafayette Feb. 29 and Michigan at Ann Arbor March 7. Both Michigan and Northwestern, because of their home floor advantage, are possibilities to halt the Boilermaker winning streak.

Indiana, with eight wins and one loss, has three more conference teams to play—Wisconsin at Bloomington Saturday; Northwestern at Evanston Feb. 29 and Ohio State at Bloomington March 2.

The Hoosiers should be able to take Wisconsin but Ohio State and Northwestern present more difficult problems. It was Ohio which handed Indiana its only defeat, at Columbus last Saturday. The Hoosiers defeated Northwestern, 27 to 24, at Bloomington, Jan. 11.

will receive $9,000. Hudlin won 15 games last season.

The only Indians unsigned are pitcher Johnny Allen, secured in a trade from the New York Yankees, infielder Roy Hughes, and Jimmy Gleason, rookie outfielder.

COUNTY TO RECEIVE $25,837.42 FROM OHIO SALES TAX

STATE EXPERTS PREDICT TOTAL OF 55 MILLIONS

No Allocation of "Use" Tax Attempted Since Receipts Are Uncertain

Pickaway-co local government fund will be augmented in 1936 by $25,837.42 from distributions of sales tax revenue, the state tax department estimated today.

The estimate was based on an expected yield of $55,000,000. Although collections last year totaled only slightly above $43,000,000, officials in the tax department are confident that the changes in the new law and more efficient enforcement will produce at least $12,000,000 more.

Based on Population. After necessary discounts, a total of $16,499,000 has been allocated to local government funds to be distributed on the basis of population. Of the expected revenue, $24,748,500 has been allocated to the state's public schools. These estimates of course are subject to change depending on collections and improvement in business conditions.

No allocations of "use" tax revenue have been made by tax officials as yet, since the revenue from this levy is problematical. Although collections from this tax have amounted to about $250 per day thus far, considerable increase in this form of income are expected as soon as the machinery for enforcement of this tax has been fully geared.

Allocation Certain. Allocations made at the beginning of 1935 to local government funds were based on a $60,000,000 expected yield and as a result the anticipated $25,754.54 that was to be distributed to the Pickaway-co local government fund last year fell short of its mark. This year, however, the estimates are based on more conservative figures and officials assert that the allocations will be realized to the fullest extent.

Heaviness in the heart of man maketh it stoop; but a good word maketh it glad.—Proverbs 12.25.

J. W. McCrady of Uhrichsville, O., brother of Taylor McCrady, Walnut-st., has been retired by the Pennsylvania railroad after 31 years' and five months' service in the stores department. Mr. McCrady, a Circleville native and a Spanish-American war veteran, plans to "take things easy for a while."

Baked Bananas and Cherries—Cut four large bananas in halves, crosswise, or use eight small ones. Lay in a buttered shallow baking dish. Boil together for a few minutes one cup of the juice from canned cherries with two tablespoons sugar and one tablespoon flour or tapioca. Add the cherries and bring to a boil. Pour over the bananas, dot with butter and bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. The bananas must not be mushy.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Makes Sons Ties

"When my husband's ties are discarded I use them for boys' ties," writes a housewife. "First I cut them in two. If very soiled I wash them; if not, I clean them slightly. I then rip the under seam of the widest end, take out padding, press, shaping a little narrower, and sew it up again. The narrow end I leave as is. I tie these two pieces as for wearing and on each end that sticks out I sew a piece of narrow elastic to fit two-thirds around the neck. On the other side I sew a piece of matching material and on the two ends I sew a snap. The elastic fits around the collar and snaps on the side, which is easy for a boy to do himself. In this way a man's expensive tie becomes two ties for a boy. My five-year-old son is proud of his ties made 'just like daddy's.'"

Neat Stuffing

What do you think of this idea? "We have little ones, and morning brings many necessary tasks. When guests are here we awaken them in the morning by knocking gently on their door. We take them warm wash cloths and towels. Next we supply extra pillows and shoulder shawls or robes. Our guests are then ready for their breakfast trays. They can eat, read the paper and dress leisurely before joining the family. It is surprising how much time this gives the hostess to plan lunch and set her house in order. Our guests find this procedure delightful." So writes one charming hostess.

GREEK STEAMER HUNTED IN SEA

No Trace Found By U. S. Ship; Others in Danger

By UNITED PRESS

Heavy seas and fogs endangered the lives of half a hundred seafarers along the Atlantic seaboard today.

Four hundred miles off the coast of Maryland rescue ships fought mountainous waves in an attempt to find the Greek steamer Stefanos Costomenis. It carried at least 30 men and last feeble reports from its radio said it was "leaking badly" and in need of "immediate assistance."

The S. S. City of Newport News arrived this morning in the vicinity of the last position given by Stefanos Costomenis but could not immediately locate the distressed craft.

Off Newburyport, Mass., coast guardsmen searched through a heavy fog for dories holding 19 of the 21-man crew of the auxiliary fishing schooner Ingomar, grounded on a sand bar a half-mile off Plum Island.

Only two members of the crew were aboard when coast guard cutters arrived beside the Ingomar. The others had put off in dories. Because of the high surf it was felt the dories could not land safely.

Four other ships went aground in Massachusetts water and were refloated.

HORNER STUDIES LIQUOR CHARGES AGAINST WALISA

Federal Commission Joseph Horner, Monday, continued the hearing of Roy Walisa, this city, charged with a conspiracy to violate the internal revenue laws through liquor manufacture, until Feb. 20.

At that time he will determine whether Walisa should be held for federal grand jury action.

A preliminary hearing was conducted Monday in federal court with Walisa represented by Tom A. Renick and W. B. Bartels.

At least one state witness was discounted in the Monday hearing when Mrs. Ida Neff, 28, Ashville, mother of four children, was on the witness stand.

Through a ruse by Walisa's attorneys, the defendant was seated in the spectators' section and Forrest Moss, this city, was sitting between the two attorneys.

Mrs. Neff testified she saw Walisa take alleged liquor to the home of John Swank, her neighbor. She told the court she saw him make several trips every week. She testified she was certain she knew Mr. Walisa because she was in the children's home with him a number of years ago. The witness said she had seen him a number of other times and knew him. Asked to point him out in the courtroom, Mrs. Neff said: "There he is" and pointed to Moss.

The charge against Walisa for conspiracy has been pending since October.

JUST REVERSED!

A farmer who was a witness in a hog stealing case seemed to be stretching a point or two in favor of the accused.

"Do you know the nature of an oath?" the prosecuting attorney roared.

"Sure."

"Do you know you are not to bear false witness against your neighbor?"

"I'm not bearin' false witness again him. 'I' bearin' false witness for him."
